

God is full of Grace!

Monthly Feature: Fall

I will say of the Lord, “He is my refuge and my fortress; My God, in Him I will trust.” - Psalm 91:2

Since the last time we spoke, (was it July?) God has moved my support level up (22%) and I’ve have seen Him continue to provide opportunities for ministry as I continue to balance work and Pre-Field ministry. Please continue to pray that my support level will rise so that I can leave for Ghana quickly to invest in the lives and souls that are so desperately in need!

The events of the last couple months have not been exceptional or extraordinary in any way, but they consist of a few key things: First, since my trip to Ghana in the summer, I have had specific names and ministries to pray for and to think through while I’ve been state-side working and raising support. It has been encouraging to pray specifics and only makes my heart ache for them more!

Secondly, I have had the chance to experience both the discouragement and encouragement that comes from sitting down and pouring prayerfully over churches and individual contacts that might be potential supporters. Knowing that God is sovereign and has appointed for me the supporters that He desires for me to have, it is both neat and frustrating at times to find out who those supporters are. It manifests to me the reality of the dependency that I have on God.

Finally, ministry never stops!! I have had the continued joy of being in the rotation for teaching both the adult Sunday School class at Calvary Baptist Church and in the youth group. Playing music leader at times, jumping in to help moderate Sunday night studies, and taking off for the weekend to present the ministry in Ghana has been a joy and an encouragement! The ministries that God has placed onto my plate are ones that will always be difficult to relinquish when time comes to fly out for Ghana.

Speaking of flying out for Ghana, I have a super-exciting development to share with everyone!! On thanksgiving weekend, I received news that the Gelatts, my co-workers who are in Ghana at this time, are planning to return to the states on furlough over the summer of 2019. While they are gone, they are hoping and praying for a team to come to keep the ministries going. Since I am on pre-field to head to Ghana anyway, I am a prime candidate to go and do just that. I have been praying that when my work commitment is over in April of 2019, I would be able to leave almost immediately to Ghana. This wonderful opportunity is an answer to prayer! I would be able to go without full-term support but will carry a short-term status. This is all so very exciting, since I have been chomping at the bit to head overseas. God gives good gifts! Praise Him for this.

Happy belated Thanksgiving! Have a Merry Christmas and a Happy New Year!
